In good condition for being from 1975, has the engravings on the bottom as well as the original inspection sticker still on it from the company. Has some scratches and such but can easily be renovated , this is an old fiberglass chair so scratches will happen within time but none affect its value at all!

Info by Antique AI:

This image shows a mid-century modern fiberglass armchair, known for its distinctive molded shape and integrated armrests. These chairs were often designed by notable designers like Charles and Ray Eames. The seat is made from molded fiberglass, a popular material during the mid-20th century for its durability and unique texture.

The chair features a metal base with four legs, indicative of the time period's design trends focusing on functionality and minimalism.
